Thinking Out Loud

For sometime we have mulled over President Roosevelt's proposal, made to Congress, for the enactment of a new Bill of Rights, under which, he said, a new basis of security could be established for all.

Before the President begins a crusade for the New Bill of Rights we should like to see him enforce the old Bill of Rights long ago enacted in the Constitution of the United States. We should like to see him dethrone Harry Hopkins, who said, quite dictatorially, "We are going to tax and tax and spend and spend." He would like to see him remove from office a thousor two bureaucrats who infest this country like Texas ticks and torment its people by denying them their rights under the old Bill. Packing the Supreme Court, which might have been a major disaster, was not proposed in the spirit of the Old Bill. There are many things that come to mind, that indicate that the President gives the Old Bill but lip service. For this reason his New Bill is immediately suspect.

2 The right to earn enough to provide adequate food, clothing and recreation.

3 The right of every farmer to a return for his products which will provide a decent living for him and his family.

4 The right of every businessman to be free from unfair competition and domination by monopolies.

6 The right to adequate medical care and an opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health.

7 The right to adequate protection from economic fears in old age, illness, accident and unemployment.

Well, to begin with No. 1. The only employer who could give any man or woman the 'right" of a useful and remunerative job, would be government, and that would mean a collective state. Private enterprise could not possibly be forced to accord the right of anyone to any job. In private enterprise jobs have to be earned by loyalty, industry, persistence and courage. Even then they are not a right. They are the privilege of those who prove themselves worthy to hold a job. How could it be otherwise unless we have the collective state to employ all of us, putting our pay into one pocket and taking out taxes from another.

No. 2 We have the right now to earn enough for an adequate living. A great many people fail to avail themselves of the right, human nature being what it is, with some persons born lazy, others quite stupid, others with no "git up and git", and still others who incline to become social parasites. This proposal, like the first, really means state socialism, under which the industrious and enterprising will be divested of their earnings in order to insure all the improvident and all playboys and girls a living. The government under this item would take care, good care, of all the ne'er-do-wells, and make a lot more of them.

No. 3 proposes to take the load of responsibility for his own welfare off the farmer's tired shulders. The only way the farmer could be guaranteed the "rights" to a "decent living" (please note what a vague term this is) would be by government crop and price controls, the socialized collective state again, the kind of state we are spending taxes, sweat, blood and tears, to exterminate in Europe.

No. 4 Means that the collective state steps in and regiments

GRAND JURY REPORTS SLOT MACHINES BANISHED IN COUNTY

The Nevada County Grand Jury which was formally discharged Tuesday after two years of service, yesterday filed its report in which special stress was laid on that body's successful effort to stamp out slot machines and other gambling devices in Nevada County.

The report of the Public Morals and Law Enforcement Committee, which in the absence of W. L. Goggins, now serving as an officer in the U. S. Navy, was signed by H. F. Keckley of Grass Valley, acting chairman, states:

"This year we had proper cooperation from law enforcement agents. Consequently in the year 1943 we have been able to get rid of slot machines in Nevada County with the understanding that they will remain out. We recommend that future grand juries see to it that they are kept out."

The general report, signed by the grand jury foreman, Fred M. Miller, commends Goggins for his good work as chairman of the Public Morals and Law Enforcement Committee and recites that on June 10th, 1943, in response to a general complaint that slot machines and gambling devices were being operated throughout the county, with the exception of Nevada City, the grand jury recommended and directed that law enforcement officers of the county to suppress them.

On October 10th, 1943, the report states, Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen and District Attorney Ward Sheldon were called before the grand jury, and the sheriff then said he would take immediate steps to carry out the grand jury's recommendation. From pross reports and other information the grand jury concludes that the sheriff kept his agreement.

Resolutions passel included one directed to Governor Earl Warren asking that daylight saving be abolished because of the early morning darkness which was considered a hardship to workers and young school children.

Another resolution heartily endorses the proposal of certain state officials that the May and August primary elections be consolidated, thereby saving the tax payers of every county a considerable sum of money. A copy of this resolution was also sent to the governor.

The court house clock, which for long intervals is only right twice a day for a fleeting second, came in for grand jury discussion. Under the interest expressed by that body, Robert Steger, acting janitor, made an examination of this time piece set high in the facade of the building, and discovered that its only need was a dose of winter lubricating oil. It has since recorded the flight of time correctly.

NEVADA CITY MAY GET POST WAR AIRLINE

A letter from Paul G. Sturges, director of public relations for the Southwest Airways Company, with headquarters at Beverly Hills, in Los Angeles County, received by the Nugget, states that Nevada City is being considered as a landing field for one of the eleven airline routes on the Pacific Coast, for which applications are pending with the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The City of Nevada owns a landing field on top of Cement Hill, on which "scissors" runways have been constructed. Prior to the war it was used as a training field for local amateur pilots in light planes, and occasionally for commercial craft, such as air taxis. Engineers, however, believe it will require several thousand dollars to improve the field to make it available for planes in passenger and freight service.

HOME RENOVATED

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson have purchased the Dwight Steel property on lower Boulder street and are having the interior redecorated. They will move into their new home as soon as this work is completed. Anderson is engaged in development work in the Gaston mine northeast of Washington. Mrs. Anderson is organist in the Episcopal Church and takes a deep interest in community affairs.

NOR. CALIFORNIA LOAN QUOTA IS 408 MILLIONS

Northern Californians launched their Fourth War Loan Drive this week with a goal of 408,000,000 as their share of the nation wide $14 billion drive.

While the quotas for the Fourth War Loan are slightly below those of the Third War Loan Drive, the quota for sales to individuals has been considerably increased.

Throughout Northern California, a goal of $209,000,000 has been set for the sale of War Bonds to individuals.

With this goal ahead of them, communities throughout the state this week were getting their drives under way. San Francisco opened its drive with a city wide "Block Buster Attack' in which a house to house canvass is being made to sell War Bonds to individuals.

War Finance Committee officials emphasized that a far greater dependence is being placed on individuals in the Fourth War Loan Drive.

They pointed to the statements of General Eisenhower and other military leaders who promised victory in 1944—if the people on the home front do their job at top efficiency.

The Fourth War Loan Drive comes at a time when the final preparations for invasion of Europe are being made. Hence, War Loan Drive officials pointed out, the need for support is even more urgent than before.

They pointed too, to the slogan of the drive: Let's all back the attack! —and urged Northern Californians to make it count in terms of War Bond purchases.

BILL EBAUGH BRIEFLY SEEN WALKING ON BANNER ROAD

Bill Ebaugh, whiskered eccentric of Willow Valley, fugitive from justice for the third time, wanted since November 10th on a charge of killing his neighbor's cattle, put in a brief appearance on the Banner Road near Pino Alto early last week.

Saturday afternoon following a tip that he had been seen in that vicinity, Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen, Game Warden Earl Hiscox and Undersheriff William Woods scoured the Banner Mountain vicinity but without result. The trail, the sheriff stated was too old.

Complaint was lodged in the sheriff's office Saturday noon by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse T. Renroe of Sacramento that their cabin at Pino Alto and those of three or four more of their neighbors there had been robbed. Renfroe stated that the burglar had stolen about $300 worth of groceries stored in his dwelling, a 12 gauge shotgun and 30-30 rifle, and abundant ammunition for both. When shown a picture of Ebaugh, Renroe exclaimed:

"I saw that man just three days ago walking along the Banner Road. He was unarmed and carried a sack over his shoulder. I wondered then why such a young looking man should be wearing such a huge crop of whiskers. But that's the guy alright."

The sheriff stated that he found not four, but seven of the cabins at Pino Alto had been entered and apparently robbed. These cabins belong, in the majority of cases, to Sacramento people who make their summer homes there. Pino Alto is only four miles south of Nevada City along the Banner Road.

A pick had been used to force the locks on the doors. Often there were double locks, a spring lock and a padlock. The door frames in some cases were broken and splintered. The sheriff said that he could not understand why with so many summer homes at Pino Alto, the owners did not pool the costs and hire a care taker through the winter months.

CLAIR ENGLE TO ATTEND MINING CONGRESS MEET

Clair Engle, representing the Second Congressional District in Congress, writing the Nugget, states that he will attend the joint meeting of the Colorado Mining Association and the Western Division, American Mining Congress, when it convenes in Denver, January 27th to 29th.

Engle states that he will present a three point program for benefit of the mining industry.

1 He will seek action in Congress to have WPB order L-208 rescinded. He has already introduced a bill in the House to that effect. It has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee for study.

2 He would ask the government to give financial assistance to gold mine operators in reopening their mines. Many operators obeying the WPB order, Engle writes, have suffered loss and depreciation.

3 Following the announcement of the government that there is now on hand an abundance of various types of metals, and the consequent closing of some mines, Engle wants the status and aiticipated peace time requirements for western metals in the post war period accurately determined.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron L. Eastman came up from San Francisco Friday evening motoring to their home on Town Talk ridge. Eastman, mining engineer, is now with the RFC and continued to Owens River Valley where he will inspect mines. Mrs. Eastman remained here and will visit while hs is on his business trip.

MAJR CHAPMAN IS ORDERED TO DUTY ABROAD

Dr. C. W. Chapman yesterday received a letter from his son, Major Warren Chapman, in Washington, D. C., stating that the young soldier had been ordered to duty abroad. He said that he had been given a first air prority on an U. S. Army transport and monetary expected his orders to leave.

Major Chapman is an alumnus of the Nevada City High School. He graduated from the West Point Military Acamedy in 1939 as a second lieutenant, and since has been rapidly advanced in rank. He has been occupied at various military positions in the United States in teaching, but at his own urgent request has at length been ordered to duty abroad.

MRS. M. VANBERG IS SUMMONED

Mrs. Martin Vanberg, whose husband is widely known as a mine operator, passed away Saturday night at a local hospital. The family have resided for many years at 124 Grove street in this city.

Mrs. Vanberg would have been 69 years of age in February. She was born in Marquette, Michigan. The family came to California in 1900 and for some years Martin Vanberg was engaged in mining at Washington, Nevada County.

Surviving Mrs. Vanberg, besides her husband, are a daughter, Miss Eleanor Vanberg, chief clerk of the Nevada City Ration Board, and four sons, Ray S. and Martin M. Vanberg of Seattle, Warren Vanberg of Los Angeles, and Robert Vanberg in the U. S. Army, now stationed in Great Britain.

Funeral services in charge of Holmes Funeral Home will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. in St. Canice Catholic Church. Interment will be in the Catholic Cemetery.

C.H.M.A. HONORS GEN. AND MRS. WARREN HANNUM

The banquet room of the National Hotel in this city yesterday was filled with 70 members and friends of the California Hydraulic Miners Association, who met at a 1 o'clock dinner to honor Brigadier General and Mrs. Warren T. Hannum. The general for many years was president of the California Debris Commission and is now retired.

W. E. Wilson, vice president of the organization, was master of ceremonies. Wilson is owner of the Paragon Mine on the North Fork of the Americna River. He called on several members for short talks and then gave the president, George Hallock, the honor of introducing Gen. Hannum.

"Throughout my life," said the general, "it has been one of my objectives to win the respect and the friendship of those with whom I am associated. I seem to have succeeded with the California Hydraulic Association. I thank you for this honor. At the end of this month I shall have completed 46 years in the service of my country. Thirty six years ago I was sent to the Hawaiian Islands on a mission and came through San Francisco. I made up my mind I would like to bring my family west and live in California. It was not until I was appointed to the California Debris Commission that this wish was gratified.

"Today I miss two members of this organization for whom I had a high regard, Fred Harvey and Harry Englebright. We all miss them. We must learn to carry on without them.

"There is much work remaining for this association to do. One task is to secure a legal definition of watter pollution which will not discriminate against hydraulic mining. Since I have been on the commission the Englebright Dam and the North Fork Dam on the American River have been completed. The Rucky Chucky Dam I hope will be the first federal project undertaken in this district when the war ends."

Gen. Hannum regretted that Col. R. H. Hunter, secretary of the debris commission, and Mrs. Hunter, were unable to be present due to an accident in which Col Hunter had lost one of his fingers and was now hospitalized.

Speakers who praised Gen. Hannum for the great assistance he has given the hydraulic mining industry, were Claud Clark, superintendent of the Relief Hill Mine, Edward Kinyon, Mrs. Grace Englebright, widow of the late Congressman Harry L. Englebright, Ross Taylor, engineer of Sierra County, Vernon McCann of Auburn, George Hallock and William Esterly, president and secretary of the association. Army officers introduced were Col. William Smith in charge of the DeWitt Hospital near Auburn, Capt. Roy M. Buck and Lieut. W. A. Sammond of Camp Beale.

Mrs. A. Merriam Conner, widely known author of "Just Wonderin' " and named the poet laureate of the California Hydraulic Miners Association, was introduced and a poem entitled "Pure Gold" written in appreciation of the aid given the placer miners by Gen, Hannum was read. The poem follows:

PURE GOLD

Dedicated to Gen. Warren T. Hannum by the CHMA's Poet Laureate

The outcropping claimed our attention
And the colors looked good from the start,
So we followed a lead that was clearly defined
And struck it rich in your heart;
And there, with the gold dust and flake gold,
Were nuggets all burnished and bright,
That shone through days that were cloudy
And glowed in the darkness of night.

We posted our claims with assurance
And we're holding the same to the end;
They are not for sale and they can't be jumped,
For they lie in the heart of a friend;
We need no assayer to tell us,
The worth of the treasures we hold,

TAHOE FOREST RELIFE MAP IS BEING REPAINTED

Those Nevada County citizens who have marvelled at the topographic detail of the huge relief wall map, a former exposition exhibit and which has covered one wall in the U. S. Forest service office in this city for several years, may see a similar replica in the near future by visiting headquarters of the 173rd Engineers at Camp Beale. Using the Tahoe National Forest service negative of the wall map the engineers made a copy and built a plaster of paris replica of the Tahoe National Forest area of this section in particular.

The huge plaque was returned to this city and two of the Engineer Corps, T-5 Raymond Grocks, formerly of Chicago and Pvt. Henry J. Billicki, formerly of Wisconsin, and both artists of pre-war days, commenced applying the colors to the map. This is being done by a small bore paint gun with air compressor equipment which the two service men brought with them from Beale.

The job will take several days, Pvt. Bilicki estimated. Billicki has a background of several years as a commercial painter and before entering Army service was engaged in creating pictures for use in highway signs.

MODESTO MAN KILLED WHEN CAR GOES OVER BANK

The remains of the late Clayton Pettinger, 59, believed instantly killed when his car plunged 400 feet to the bottom of the Depot Hill canyon on the Downieville highway, were shipped to Modesto Friday afternoon by the Holmes Funeral Home of Nevada City. Mr. Holmes drove to Downieville late Thursday night for the remains when notified by officials of Sierra County.

From indications Pettinger's car plunged off the highway presumably on Wednesday. Wheel tracks disappearing from the road edge prompted C. B. Butz, highway superintendent to investigate with wreckage and remains found at the bottom of the steep canyon.

The deceased was a native of Ohio, born September 30, 1883. He was an upholsterer by profession with home address at Modesto. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harold Cain at Modesto.

ENDORSE GAS RATION BOOKS WHEN RECEIVED

Gilbert McNeil, district mileage rationing representative of the Office of Price Administration in Sacramento, again called to the attention of Northern California motorists that all gasoline ration books should be endorsed by holders immediately upon receipt from their war price and rationing board. Failure to do so may result in their revocation, McNeil said.

"While representatives of the gasoline industry, distributors, and oil station operators are lining up to fight the black market menace, we also need the active support of the individual motorist to make the gasoline rationing program entirely successful.

"If you want to keep on getting your share of gasoline, don't use someone else's share."

McNeil has just completed a series of meetings with oil company representatives in several Northern California cities, held for the purpose of outlining the new gasoline rationing enforcement measures which call for endorsement of all ration books immediately upon receipt, the possible revocation of such books if not properly endorsed, and the checking of coupons by a station operator before delivery of gasoline rations to a motorist.

W. P. Clerkin, old time cattleman of the French Corral district, visited in Nevada City Thursday.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the things I find
In letters I receive;
Three recent ones contained these threads
From which a tapestry to weave,
But I can't weave, all I can do
Is pass the threads along to you.

It is rather exasperating to find one's self in possession of material from which an epic might be created, and at the same time realize one's inadequacy. However, the dramatic tale of Jap internees here in America and of Americans interned on Japanese invaded soil will, in the future, be told by those capable of handling the theme and preserving it for future generations.

A letter from the bay area contains a vivid review of a lecture recently delivered by an Amercan woman—a returned missionary who, for several years before Pearl Harbor, lived in Japan, where she acquired a deep and sentimental regard for the wily Nips.

Not long since, this misguided woman visited the Tule Lake internment camp and she expressed her disapproval of that enterprise in no uncertain terms. According to her opinion, the Japs were not receiving proper treatment. Food, bodily comforts, amusements, etc., were all inadequate. "America," she declared, "was not treating her worthy internees in a Christian manner." That was too much for my correspondent. "At that point," she wrote, "I got up and left the hall."

A second correspondent writing from a-proximity-says, "we can't get block wood here, it is all sent to Tule Lake. Pork has practically vanished from our larders, the Japs at Tule Lake get it—d'm."

Now, at long last, after months of agonized uncertainty, friends and relatives have received a brief message from far away Manila. Coming in a round about way, it reveals the fate of a lovely and gracious lady, who, at the time of the Jap invasion, was living with her husband, small daughter and other relatives, happily and luxuriantly upon the Ise of Negros. This brief message was relayed to me and I'm sure it will be of interest to you.

"Of course the first thing you will want to know is that we are all well, safe and in good health. At the beginning of the war, all Negros people were interned in Batolad, but early this year, the entire camp was moved to Manila. Amy came down from Baguio about two weeks later and joined us here. How happy we were to see her after a year and a half separation. She had been well taken care of, even though her wardrobe was a little scant and shabby. The three Woods and we three, have a little twelve by fourteen Nipo shanty on the camp grounds, in which we spend the daylight hours. We cook a few things over charcoal fires and eat from white enameled dishes. Plenty of vegetables and rice. There are about six hundred shanties in all. At night, we all go to our assigned rooms in the various main buildings. Woody and I work in the camp vegetable garden. Margaret in the textile department. Nell in the relief and welfare department. Ann and Charlon are going to school. All details about our many experiences will have to wait the telling until a later date."

Well, there are the threads of the story. What do you make of them?—A. Merriam Conner.

S. F. CHAMBER SAYS SUPPORT METAL MINERS

Purchase of foreign metals at premium prices by the federal government at a time when its policies are sounding the death knell for domestic strategic metal mines is vigorously criticized in a resolution passed by the Board of Directors of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement made today. The resolution which proposes more constructive policies from both an international and a domestic viewpoint was adopted unanimously on recommendation of the Chamber's Mining Committee of which George B. Dodge is Chairman.

Domestic metals production has made America's phenomenal contribution to the war effort possible, the Chamber says, and productive capacity should not be hampered for the duration of the war. During 1943 the output of metals and minerals in the United States was the greatest in history, exceeding $8,000,000,000.

The Chamber claims that the U. S. government policy of buying tungsten, quicksilver, antimony, chromium and other metals from foreign sources is operating greatly to the detriment of domestic producers who have made extensive investments at the government's instance and request in order to develop and produce these metals for the war effort.

The Chamber "deplores his policy as a gross injustice to domestic mines, and as one which saddles the entire cost of a national foreign policy upon owners of mines who have made large investments in good faith and reliance upon the government's assurances that they would be permitted to supply United States war needs at compensatory prices, at least, during the pendency of the war."

UNPLEDGED SLATE DEFEATS PURPOSE OF PRIMARY LAW

The California presidential primary law was amended since the last election to prevent the selection of uninstructed delegates to the national presidential nominating conventions.

This action was intended to make it certain the registered electors of all parties would be given an opportunity to vote for delegates pledged to bonafide candidates, not be asked to sign a blank check as was the case with the California delegation elected to the Republican national convention in 1940.

But so far as the GOP is concerned, it is now apparent this provision of the law is to be avoided by a subterfuge to which, unfortunately, Governor Earl Warren has lent his name and influence.

To comply with the law, the governor has authorized the placing of his name in the race as a presidential candidate, subject to the approval of the voters.

However, in a letter to a group of Republican leaders announcing his decision, Waren declared positively he is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for either president or vice president.

Actually, therefore, the ticket to be headed by the governor will be an uninstructed delegation and those who vote for it will be as much in the dark as to which presidential candidate its members actually favor as they were with respect to the delegation elected four years ago and headed by Senator J. L. Seawell of Placer County.

This maneuver may provide technical compliance with the letter of the law, but it outrages and insults its spirit. It denies to the rank and file of the Republican Party in California any voice or participation whatever in the selection of the party's candidate for president.

Governor Warren would occupy a far stronger position and would not be open to the charge of lending his name to a piece of political chicanery if he announced whom he favors for the Republican nomination and headed up a ticket accordingly.

It is not becoming of Governor Warren to give aid and comfort to the plan of certain GOP leaders to elect an unpledged delegation with which they can dicker with the bosses at the Republican national convention.—Sacramento Bee.

ARTHU W. HOGE WAS DEVOTED TO MINING INDUSTRY

Funeral services were held Saturday in the Holmes Funeral Home chapel for the late Arthur W. Hoge who passed away Thursday morning at his home here.

The boyhood life of the man who was to become one of Nevada City's most prominent citizens, was spent at Flushing where he received his education. Following an early profession as civil engineer he constructed telephone lines in various parts of Ohio and Kentucky, property which later became a part of the Bell Telephone Company communication system.

For some time he engaged in the construction business with activities centralized at Cleveland and Lorraine, Ohio.

At that time the late Arthur Hoge had invested in mining stock in the Willow Valley mine and it was perhaps the fascination of mining adventure which prompted him to come to Nevada City to look over his investment. From such casual visit emerged a figure to be known the breadth and length of the gold mining fields of the west coast.

With the Walther family he became owner of the Great Northern Gold Mine, Inc., which closed in January, 1942.

He was the chief owner of the Penn-California Mining Company, which property was later reorganized as the Hoge Development Company. This company was reorganized in 1930 and a part of Hoges original holdings became the Great Northern Gold Mines. Inc. A total of 100 meners were employed in this property at its peak production.

Not only was the deceased interested in mining property with a Nevada City radius but his activities led him into the fields of the Washington and Forest areas where he played an important role in important producers. He was one of the founders of the Black Rock Placer Mining District and was also first president of the Lava Cap Gold Mines, Inc.

At the time when Errol MacBoyle was president of the State Mining Board the late Arthur Hoge served efficiently as a director.

With a general shut down of mines throughout this district during the days of World War I, the deceased held the distinction of maintaining and operating the only gold mine at Nevada City when he supervised the extensive tunneling project of the Willow Valley mine.

While mining was his vocation, Hoge found time to take an active part in civil activities of benefit to this city and surrounding area. He was a charter member of the Nevada County Golf Association. He served successfully as president of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce and as such instituted many betterment features.

With foresight to the future of Nevada county through its recreational possibilities he was a strong advocate of winter sports in this area and served as a charter organizer of the Nevada City-Grass Valley winter play grounds and ski courses near the Central House on the Tahoe Ukiah highway.

Up to a few years ago he maintained membership and active interest in the B. P. O. Elks, becoming a member in the eastern states and later affiliating with Nevada City Lodge.

Rev. David Ralston of the Methodist Church officiated at Saturday's service. Interment was in the East Lawn cemetery at Sacramento.

JOSEPH GASPEROTTI PASSES

The remains of Joseph Gasperotti, formerly a resident here, who passed away Friday in Redwood City, San Mateo county, were received by Holmes Funeral Home yesterday afternoon.

The deceased was a native of Italy aged 61 years. Funeral arrangements by Holmes Funeral Home provide for services tomorrow morning in St. Canice Catholic Church. Interment will be in the Catholic Cemetery.

all business. We have plenty of laws right now on the statute books to prevent unfair competition, if President Roosevelt and his army of bureaucrats would enforce them. The law against domination of little business by big monoplies, only needs enforcement. Business, big and little, would rather buck the monopolies than the kind of government Mr. Roosevelt contemplates in his New Bill of Rights.

No. 6 This is another one. Every family has the right to a decent home, but no family will value it if a collective state hands it out on a silver platter. What makes this a great nation? Why, God bless you, it is upstanding American citizens who build their own homes without government aid or interference.

No. 7 Well, well. We thought the New Deal had taken care of that. We are "to free old people from economic fears', arising from illness, accident, and unemployment. There may be something in socialized medicine and free hospitals. We don't know. But we suspect that when all physicians are forced to become government clerks, the health of the people, by and large, will not be improved. As for unemployment, of the aged, the only employment for old folks over 65 in California, now have, is the monthly toddle up to the court house to draw a government check for $50, which is more than a good many of them earned in their heydey.

And last, No. 8, the right to a good education. What does the President mean by "good"? The right to a good education is like the right to a job. Boys that want a good education, can get it, ninety nine cases in a hundred, and those that don't want it, probably can't fe forced by a socialized state to absorb it through their skins.

Among these proposals to improve human nature by edict or legislative enactment, there is one that the President forgot to make. It is an omission which may cost him a great many votes come next November. It reads:

No. 9 Every Negro in this great, free country, shall have the right to be born with a white skin and blond, straight hair.

Our private opinion publicly expressed, as Jesse Mayo phrases his views in his Calaveras Prospect, is that the New Deal, dismounted for a short time in favor of Dr. Win-the-War, is back in the saddle again and riding hell for leather with the four horsemen for a Fourth Term.

Mrs. H. P. Davis who has been spending some time visiting Col, and Mrs. Buford on Yerba Buena Island, came up Saturday to attend the funeral of the late Arthur Hoge. She will remain here for a time.

ENGINEER DISCUSSES RELATION OF GOLD TO PRODUCTION, WEALTH

By ARTHUR B. FOOTE
Civil and Mining Engineer—In the Mining and Industrial News

Francis H. Brownell, in his article "International Bimetalism," proposes to establish by agreement the value of silver in terms of gold.

Gold, silver, copper, iron are all commodities and the value of each is determined by the supply and demand for the labor of hand or brain required to produce them. The value of a commodity cannot be changed by changing the unit of measure. To alter the legal length of a yard would not change the value of three feet of cloth.

Gold differs from other commodities in one respect only, it is used and has been used in the civilized world for more than a thousand year as a standard by which the value of other commodities is measured. It is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, because, while it is found in many parts of the world, it is so widely disseminated that much human labor is represented in a small space.

In California, if one fourth of an ounce of gold per day per man employed can be recovered, a gold mine may make a profit. And yet, if it were not for the development of power and labor saving devices, there is probably not a quartz mine in the state from which a miner could earn a living.

Gold is the only metal that is yellow in its pure state, it does not corrode and is easily identified. The value of gold in terms of human labor is subject to less fluctuation than that of most of the other commodities.

Both domestic and international trade consist of an exchange of commodities. It is customary in an exchange of goods in foreign trade to substitute gold when no other commodity is acceptable or available for exchange. This is convenient because the price of gold in the various currencies of the world is published daily, but there is nothing to prevent the use of this purpose of silver or anything else.

A nation that receives gold instead of other commodities in exchange for its exports is said to have "a favorable balance in trade." Why should the receipt of gold in exchange for our exports be considered favorable, whereas the receipt of other commodities is considered unfavorable, to be prevented by a tariff? There is no valid reason.

It is probably because the price of gold in dollars is fixed by law, therefore people think of gold as money, and wages are paid in money. But the use of money in an exchange of goods or services is only a matter of convenience, and money is of no use except to exchange for goods and services.

Mr. Brownell's idea is just another one of the thousands that have been proposed since the beginning of history for increasing wealth without producing wealth.

Wealth is the product of the labor of hand and brain. Each person earns his living by producing what he is best able and fitted to do and exchanges his production for that of others. There is only one way to increase the wealth of an individual or of a nation, and that is to increase the production of those goods and services that add to the comfort and enjoyment of life.

We owe all the wealth and luxuries of civilization to the development of power and labor saving devices that enables us to produce far more wealth per hour of labor than can be done with hands and brain unaided.

The use of money and the credit system for convenience in exchanging the production of people in all parts of the world enables us to accumulate wealth produced in the past as capital and to borrow wealth to be produced in the future. Except for the injection of capital or money borrowed, the total production of goods and services is identical with the total buying power, and the production of labor must pay the wages of labor.

Therefore the production of those things that add to prosperity increases wealth and buying power, but the production of war materials does the opposite, the wages must be paid from taxes or money borrowed from the people, and buying power is reduced.

Relation of Gold

The relation between wages, production and employment can be clarified by using gold mining as an example, because the production of gold is equivalent to the production of money.

If a gold miner can recover one-fourth of an ounce of gold a day and his wages are one seventh of an ounce a day, the production of gold in California will be about 1,400,000 ounces a year, worth $49,000,000 at the present price. But if miners will not work for less than one fourth of an ounce a day, or restrict their production to one seventh of an ounce, not a gold mine in the state would continue in operation, and the buying power of the state would be reduced by $49,000,000 a year.

This lack of buying power would cause many more men beside the miners to be unemployed. This would be true, except for the total value in dollars, because changing the price of gold does not change the value or buying power of comive value or buying power of commodities; it simply changes the value of the dollar.

The only reason this nation never recovered from the effects of the last war and went into debt over 20 billion dollars was because wages and prices were not permitted to sink to the level determined by supply and demand in 1930 to 1934. This policy cannot be continued after this war is over because there is a limit to the amount the government can borrow.

U. S. Must Maintain Credit

After the war all the belligerent nations will be bankrupt except the United States and Great Britain, both of which have some gold and silver as security for the payment of a portion of their debts. (Russia is in a class by itself because everyone is paid by the government). The value of the silver will be determined by the market price in gold at that time, not what was paid for the silver.

The whole future prosperity of the United States will depend upon maintaining its credit, preserving the buying power of all the savings of the people, and this can only be done by stopping all borrowing by the government as soon as the war is over.

The credit of the United States will not be good enough to lend gold or silver to bankrupt nations to enable them to buy our goods. We may have to feed some people as a charity but this should be done by the people who can afford it or from taxes, but not by borrowing. Taxes should be lowered to the level of diminishing returns.

Everyone in the world will be poorer than before the war, the only way to restore prosperity is to increase the production of wealth, more can be produced in 48 hours than in 40, therefore all brakes to production should be removed.

Last Rites For Late Anacleto Agostini

Last rites were said Saturday for the late Anacleto Agostini, who passed away at his home on Alta Hill, adjoining Grass Valley, Wednesday evening. Rosary services were held in the chapel of Holmes Funeral Home Friday evening. Saturday morning in St. Canice Catholic Church, Rev. Virgil Gabrielle conducted the funeral service. Interment was in the Catholic Cemetery.

The deceased was a native of Italy aged 74 years. He had lived in the Nevada City-Grass Valley area for forty years. He formerly operated a hotel in Nevada City and in later years owned a small farm near the foot of Cement Hill just outside the city limits.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ziffira Agostini, and daughters, Mrs. Ana Fontana of Nevada City, Mrs. Lena Riddle of Sacramento, Mrs. Mary Gulgargie of Stockton, Mrs. Rose Casci of Grass Valley and Mrs. Reta Bloodale of Town Talk.

Falls On Slippery Floor Sues For Damages

Jurors have been served by the sheriff's deputies to hear the evidence in the case of Loretta Carr versus Victor Cheim and J. R. Brust. The latter are the owners of the Ben Franklin Store in Grass Valley. The trial is set for January 31st.

The plaintiff alleges that she fell on the slippery floor of the store on January 11th, 1943, and sustained a dislocated shoulder, a fracture of the tubercle of the right humerus and various contusions. Damages for injuries in the sum of $264,68 are asked, plus $3,000 in general damages. Peters and Peters, legal firm of Chico, will appear for the defendants. James Snell and Lynne Kelly of Grass Valley wiill represent the plaintiff.

Charles J. Smith, New Forest Staff Member

Guerdon Ellis, supervisor of Tahoe National Forest, announces the appointment of Charles J. Smith to be assistant to Forest Engineer Donald G. McBean.

Smith first entered the forest service as project superintendent during the Civilian Conservation Corps program. Following Pearl Harbor Smith was assigned to the work of establishing aircraft observation posts along the Pacific Coast. When construction and organization of these were completed he was given charge of training observers.

THREE SMALL BOYS STEAL FIVE LARGE CARS

Three boys, 12, 13 and 14 years of age were briefly lodged in the city jail Thursday evening after leaving a trail of five cars first stolen, then abandoned, all the way from Antioch to Washington on the South Yuba River.

The boys were David Miller, 13, who had escaped from the Salvation Army Home at Lytton Springs near Santa Rosa, Bernard Wondra, 12 and his brother Norman Wondra, 14, who had escaped from a Contra Costa County Detention Home near Martinez.

According to the story told Policeman Otis Hardt and Police Chief James Allen, the three had stolen a station wagon in Martinez. They drove in this to Antioch, where running out of gas, they abandoned it. From there they hiked to Concord and picked up a 1939 Ford. In this they visited Richmond but returned to Antioch and there abandoned the car in a field. They then went to Vallejo, occasionally hitch-hiking, and there stole another Ford well supplied with gas and drove to Yuba City. Five miles out of Yuba City on their way to Nevada County they ran out of gas again so they walked back to Marysville and there picked up a Chevrolet truck. They found $12 in the truck and drove on to Nevada City. They abandoned the truck Tuesday last on Gethsemane street near the residence of Game Warden Earl Hiscox.

Tuesday night about 7 o'clock they backed Dick Worth's car out of his garage back of the National Hotel and took the road to Reno.

When they came to Washington Junction, they saw the road closed sign and so turned down the road to Washington. Leaving Washington they attempted the road to Relief Hill, but got mired down. They dug themselves out with their hands but presently were stuck again. They walked to Bloomfield, got a shovel, and returning tried to dig themselves out again, but finally gave up and spent Wednesday night huddled in the car.

Thursday they got a ride to Nevada City with Clyde Cole of Washington. Thursday eveninig they were picked up by Otis Hardt on Pine street and lodged in the city jail. Highway officers along the line were given short wave tips on where to find the missing cars. Police Chief Allen stated Friday that three of them had already been recovered.

The institutions from which the three boys had escaped were notified that they were here.

NOTICE FOR AUTOMOBILE BIDS

Sealed bids will be received to furnish the City of Nevada with an automobile to be used by the City Police Department, and a part of the consideration to be paid will be the credit allowed on the Ford Automobile now used by the City Police. Sealed bids will be received at the Nevada City Hall up to 8 o'clock P. M., Thursday, February 3rd, 1944, at which place and time all bids will be opened and considered. The City of Nevada reserves the right to reject all bids.

Scouts And Rotary Members Test Skills

Twenty members of Boy Scout Troop No. 24, of which the Nevada City Rotary Club is sponsor, yesterday entertained the club at luncheon. William French, law enforcement officer of the Tahoe National Forest is scout master. Guerdon Ellis, forest supervisor, was program chairman.

A novel contest was staged with Rotarians competing with the Scouts in accuracy, time, and agility of fingers in knot tying and other stunts. The first two teams consisted of Rotarians: H. E. Kjorlie, L. Geist, Charles Parsons, Al Bates and Guerdon Ellis, and Scouts: Pingree, Bates, Bertino, Thomas and Rumbough.

NSGW NOW PLAN FOR SOLDIER WELFARE

The Native Sons of the Golden West have programmed one of their most ambitious years for 1944, with care of soldiers after the war and juvenile delinquency on the top of the list, Wayne R. Millington, grand president, announces.

Prominent men and women in the business and professional life of California, members of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters, are chairmen or serving on these committees.

Grand President Millington said the organization is active in support of the proper treatment of our soldiers upon discharge and the payment of a bonus on a graduated scale. Another ambition of the order is to make the Golden Gate Cemetery at Colma the Arlington of the West.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weege came up from their home in Auburn Thursday for a short visit and business trip in this city. Mrs. Weege has been employed as a butcher in the Purity Meat Market in Auburn for some time. They have sold a store and soft drink stand on the Grass Valley-Auburn highway near Dew Drop Inn.

When you go out of doors this winter—dress in warm, dry, weather-tight clothing. But if you should come home cold and wet, change at once to warm dry clothing. At the first symptom of a cold, doctor-up and climb into bed. Get the advice of a nurse or doctor and get well and keep well.

It would be a good idea, too, to see that your home heating equipment is working efficiently and economically. Use heat wisely. Do not overheat and waste fuel. The young veterans will be guests at a potluck supper to be served in Veterans Memorial Building in Grass Valley prior to the initiation. All members of the post and of the auxiliary, it is expected, will be present.

CHMA HONORS

For time and change have assayed them
And each test proved them gold — pure gold.

Now this, in our miner's lingo,
Is what we are trying to say,
The pay streaks by friendship uncovered,
Grow wider and deeper each day;
And whether we prospect together,
Or on trails that lead somewhat apart.
Lady Luck is still smiling beside us,
For we've struck it rich in your heart.

Oh, many a famous bonanza
Endows its possessors with gold,
But material riches are tricky—
Not easy to have and to hold;
While the wealth of the heart and the spirit
Remain to the long journey's end,
An inexhaustible treasure,
In the heart of a loyal friend.

John Lotspeich Of Alleghany Passes

John Franklin Lotspeich, a miner employed for many years in the Original Sisteen-to-One Mine in Alleghany, Sierra County, died Saturday afternoon in a local hospital of pneumonia. In response to a call Dr. Harry March drove to Alleghany and brought Lotspeich to this city Saturday for emergency treatment, but he lived but a brief time.

Lotspeich was born in Texas and was 66 years of age. He was past master of the Forest Lodge of Masons at Alleghany and a member of the Scottish Rite Lodge in Sacramento.

Funeral services have tentatively been set for 2 p. m. on January 26 in the chapel of Holmes Funeral Home. The Masonic ritual will be used. Interment will be in the Masonic grounds of the Pine Grove Cemetery.

The display of Jap military equipment in the Alpha Store window, is causing much interest. Mrs. Frank Ghidotti of the Alpha Stores arranged the articles. Guns, lanterns, mortars, flag and other equipment drew a good sized crowd all day Saturday.

EVERY WOMAN MARINE FREES A MAN TO FIGHT

A little over eleven months ago the first American woman donned the attractive uniform of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. Today, thousands of girls in Marine forest-green with scarlet markings are working in control towers and line trainers, driving transport vehicles, rigging parachutes and performing other highly specialized duties formerly handled by male Marines. Every woman Marine has released a man for the fighting front, and thus has participated in glorious American victories, such as those on Bougainville, Tarawa and New Britain.

In pointing out these inspiring accomplishments during the first historic year that women have worn the uniform of this distinguished branch of America's fighting forces, Colonel D. M. Randall, the Officer in Charge of the Western Procurement Division, U. S. Marine Corps, stated that an important contribution to the success of the Women Marines' recruiting program has been the splendid cooperation of newspapers and advertisers. An example of this cooperation is seen in this issue of The Nevada City Nugget. The advertisement of Pacific Greyhound Lines is devoted almost wholly to Marine Corps Women's Reserve recruiting. This message to women is running in more than 500 newspapers throughout California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexica and ports of Texas.

"We greatly appreciate this cooperation," Colonel Randall said. "This contribution to our cause is particularly appropriate coming from Greyhound, as members of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve depend greatly on this nationwide travel system for transportation to and from training camps and the points throughout the country where they are stationed. Places in the west where Greyhound serves our organization include, among many others, Camp Pendleton at Oceanside, Camp Elliott near San Diego, and air bases at El Centro, and other localities. At Camp Elliott Greyhound service is particularly valuable, as a large number of Women Marines are on duty there and Greyhound provides special bus service to this camp.

THE MARINES, TOO, DEPEND ON GREYHOUND

Like men and women in all branches of the armed forces, the Marine Corps Women's Reserve depends on Greyhound for transportation. Greyhound buses serve Camp Elliott, San Diego, and other Marine training centers, as well as Marine bases from coast to coast. Other special services are also performed by Greyhound, often on a moment's notice. For example, buses are often requisitioned from regular schedules to transfer wounded between hospitals. In spite of shortages of buses and experienced personnel, the whole Greyhound organization is concentrating its efforts and resources to provide adequate transportation for all who must travel.
